Ahh well, there goes Summer, following Cyclone Pam off out the door. But Autumn's good too, right? All those crisp, sun-filled days and tinglingly clear evenings. Nothing stands still, though, does it – certainly not in the world of wine, which is yet again on the move as people adjust to new varietal trends, the more stringent rules around driving and the rising interest (finally) in using our planet in a way that'll leave something for the great grandkids.

But perhaps the most relevant point in all the constant evolving is this: In the general scheme of things vinous, New Zealand is just a youngster, and as with kids everywhere, the initial period is all about rapid growth and development, seeking out new paths on the way to our own identity. In Europe of course, they've been fine-tuning the machinery for centuries, so from vintage to vintage (the god of random events aside), they pretty much know what they're going to get.

As usual, we're working hard to stay ahead of the game – on the front foot and all that – as we continue to explore everything that's going on out there prior to bringing it back for you to peruse.

This month we're focused on the elusive and magical Pinot family and its challenging but ultimately rewarding offspring, Gris and Noir. Just like teenagers those two, really, when all's said and done. Within these pages we break down this often confusing array of vinos into their component styles, in an effort to make it easier for you to work out what's actually on offer. And continuing with that theme, on the back page you'll find details for our inaugural Ultimate Pinot Noir Event, a gathering of Pinot aficionados together with a gobsmacking group of our top producers for two days of noir-nuanced brilliance. Yow! Can't wait.

CASTELNAU DE SUDUIRAUT
SAUTERNES 2009 375ML 44420

$24.99 CASE OF 12 $23.99 A BOTTLE

The second wine of First Growth Sauternes sultans, Château Suduiraut, the Castelnau is a superb wee gem. Mandarin, apricot and butterscoth aromas are washed with spicy, gingery notes, followed by a rich, creamy palate balanced by just the right amount of acidity. Crack a bottle over Easter, why dontcha. But if you're onto it, you'll cellar some as well.

SOUTHERN SENSATION

MUD HOUSE

THE WOOLSHED VINEYARD

Mud House owes its existence to the spirit of adventure lurking within Essex couple John and Jennifer Joslin. While sailing around the world they stopped off at Picton and promptly fell in love with Marlborough. They decided to settle there and established Mud House Wines, named after the mud-block house they had constructed in the original vineyard.

Since those early days the winery has grown substantially, gone through several ownership changes and expanded its holdings in the leading Southern wine regions of Marlborough, Waipara Valley and Central Otago. The vineyards are sustainably managed, and carefully nurtured by the Mud House viticultural team to ensure that each variety and batch reach their optimum potential.

The company operate two wineries, one in Marlborough and one in Waipara, both equipped with leading-edge tech designed to promote natural winemaking processes by minimising human intervention. That technology provides the talented and vastly experienced wine-making team of Ben Glover, Nadine Worley and Cleighten Cornelius with a wealth of options when it comes to crafting their wines.

Long recognised for the quality of their output, Mud House continue to garner an astonishing tally of medals across their entire portfolio of varietal and regional wines.

The Disfunctional & Fabulous Famille Pinot

What is it about this Burgundian family? These often unruly grapes are capable of so much, while simultaneously driving their exponents to the brink of despair. Literally thin skinned, often petulant and capricious to manage, they can make their winemaking devotees forgive all when everything aligns and they bestow their sublime gifts to their fullest extent. With Pinot, terroir is (almost) everything. While there are a number of cousins lurking in the family photos (Pinot Blanc, Pinot Meunier), here we take a look at the front row, Pinots Gris and Noir.

Pinot Gris

As a nation we've been shuffling around the whole Pinot Gris thing for a while now, hands in pockets, whistling a jaunty tune while we kick the curb and try to affix some sort of national identity to our wide ranging (some would say confused) approach to the Gris-ster.

The fact is, unlike, say, the seasoned Alsations, who really understand their place in the whole aromatics firmament, we in New Zealand tend to flail around looking for a stylistic hook to hang our hats on. Young upstarts that we are, we're all over the place. Are we there yet? No we're not, you in the back seat. While not having entirely arrived, though, we are making some progress.

Given the wide range of styles purporting to be Pinot Gris, it can be perplexing to stand in front of a vast array of labels armed with little or no knowledge. Therefore, we've compiled a list of definitions to break things down, so that when confronted by a plethora of possibilities, you can with some confidence make your selection, according to your tastes.

The categories range from dry to sweet and cover the permutations that fall in between. It's all about the way the wines taste in the mouth, rather than their technical make-up; we sampled them all, ignored what the back labels said, and on the way took note of what we encountered.

As for you? Just follow the icons, Dorothy.

DRY

We're talking clean, crisp and dry – on mid-palate and finish – with a splash of Nashi and a bracing personality. Great food partners.

OFF-DRY

A little broader in nature: not quite sweet, but not quite dry either. There's a noticeable weight and breadth to the palate of these wines.

MEDIUM-SWEET

A touch of sweetness, spicy notes and a gorgeous opulence. Take a bow, Alsace. Masters of all categories, this is where they shine.

SWEET

Easy. These are the sweet ones, just great with a good cheese or a dessert (even with cured meats), or on their own as an aperitif.

The Disfunctional & Fabulous Famille Pinot

Pinot Noir

So many Pinots. So little time. What to buy? We break it down into a trio of quartets (we tried for a duo of sextets, but failed – you can only take these things so far). So, three categories then, covering a broad spectrum of Pinot Noir stylings, from fruity to finessed, from finessed to formidable. Somewhere in there are the ones you'd like.

FRUITY & FABULOUS

We're in the fruit section of Pinot World. While not lacking anything in the structure and body department, they let the fruit take the lead, with the backing band in full command of all necessary bells and whistles. These babies are welcoming and approachable, most appropriate for any gathering where you're covering a variety of tastes. They won't break the bank, and on a hot day, don't be afraid to chill 'em for ten minutes.

ARA SINGLE ESTATE MARLBOROUGH PATHWAY PINOT NOIR 2012

$16.99 13096

CASE OF 6 $15.99 A BOTTLE

From Ara's younger, more vigorous vines via the hands of former Montana Chief Winemaker, Jeff Clarke. Fragrant, supple, beautifully balanced, the Pathway is classic Marlborough, a supple Pinot Noir with sweet berryfruit aromas and light spice notes wrapped up with a driving red fruit finish.

RUA CENTRAL OTAGO PINOT NOIR 2014

$21.99 18771

Seductive and affordable, Akarua's drink-it-now model is ultra approachable, notes of cherry, violet and rosewater wafting in its wake as it travels the Silk Road with its bundle of spice. For price-friendly Pinot, you really can't go past it.

ELEGANTLY POISED

Gentle, refined, balanced are the catchwords. No fruit bombs here, and in fact, the days when that term could be applied to Central Otago's entire output are long gone (check out the Chard Farm for proof of that). It is interesting that these wines come from three different regions and two countries, which just serves to highlight the diversity of styles now gracing our shelves.

JULES TAYLOR MARLBOROUGH PINOT NOIR 2013

$24.99 13695

CENTRAL OTAGO PINOT NOIR 2012

$37.99 13089

ARA MARLBOROUGH
SELECT BLOCK K54 PINOT NOIR 2012

$37.99 13061

CASE OF 6 $36.99 A BOTTLE

With a good degree of vine age now under its belt, Ara's vineyard is showing the brilliant variation in expressions it is capable of. Superbly deep and dark, with a good amount of toasty oak leaning in, this is no Marlborough Lite. Anything but.

DEEP & BROODING

50 shades of Pinot Noir? Maybe; it's that kind of grape. Here, we're at the 'unfathomable depths' end of the spectrum, where things become darker and more mysterious. Concentrated. Was that a shiver down the spine? While these four fit comfortably into such a compartmentalized approach, they reside at opposite ends of the category, the Nga Waka and the Rockburn opting for a form of bolshie elegance, while the Quartz Reef and the Ara exhibit a quite charming but defiantly untamed quality.

NGA WAKA
MARTINBOROUGH PINOT NOIR 2013

$29.99 13297

CASE OF 12 $28.99 A BOTTLE

Elegantly opulent, evoking the unique character of its Martinborough terroir. The nose shows cherry, spice and oak, the generously flavoured palate an excellent depth of fruit, a touch of earthiness and a fine tannin structure. Lovely drinking.

An aristocratic wine delivering layer upon layer of exquisitely balanced flavour and texture, the richly lush fruit and toast defined by precise, refreshing citrus and acid. Consistently outstanding.

Founded in Marlborough by ex-pat Californians and brothers-in-law Andy Deuchars and Brian Thiel back in 2005, Renaissance is a craft beer oasis in the middle of wine country. Using all those distinguished palates around them as some sort of competitive spur, they produce top-end ales using local ingredients. These guys are on the up, and recent years have seen them expand both their number of personnel and their range of offerings. They took out the awards for New Zealand Champion Brewery 2013 and the AIBA Champion Small International Brewery for 2013-2014.

RENAISSANCE GRANDMASTER FRESH HOP IMPERIAL IPA 500ML

SINGLE $12.99 91392

One of the Renaissance Seasonal Range of limited release seasonal beers, this is their special fresh hop beer, made once a year using Wai-iti hops from Motueka, harvested off the vines in the morning and brewed the same afternoon to make a big double IPA. Zesty mandarin and lime notes burst from the bottle, backed by a smooth, malty finish.

L-R: ADNAMS HEAD BREWER FERGUS FITZGERALD & HEAD DISTILLER JOHN MCCARTHY

The craft beer page, you say? Well, those craft brewers and brewesses are all about turning things on their head, so let's see how far we can run with that concept, shall we? Here, we have the Adnams Brewery. Who have also turned their hand to some crafty distilling, in the form of gin. There has been beer brewed on the Adnams' site since 1345, with Adnams themselves doing the business since 1890. So, some years under the belt. The Adnams distillery sits alongside the brewery and uses many of the same local ingredients. The distillery generates 50% of the required water and steam for the brewery, forming an integral part of a sustainable system. What shall we extol here? Why not both? Okay then.

A TASTE OF France

BUNAN

In the heart of France's Bandol appellation, the Moulin des Costes in the commune of Cadière-d'Azur is an exceptional place perched on the top of limestone hills. Surrounded by olive and cypress trees, the 45-year-old vines sit on steep terraces overlooking the Mediterranean.

The estate was acquired by Paul and Pierre Bunan in 1961. Paul's son, Laurent, returned to the family estate after completing his studies in oenology and winemaking in California. He was the first of the next generation to open the doors to a more modern approach; Today Laurent is in charge of the development of the domaines Bunan. They have farmed organically since 2008, focusing on the Mourvèdre variety and introducing Grenache, Cinsault and Syrah into the mix.

Laurent's sister Françoise is in charge of communications, Pierre's daughter Claire handles the marketing and her brother Philippe hopes to become an agricultural engineer. Excellence and authenticity are the hallmarks of the Bunan family, and they pride themselves on producing dynamic red wines and sensual rosés of exceptional quality.

Bélouvé is an 18th-century country house, once the home of an order of monks who made their own wine, of course, the word itself being Provençal for 'good grape'. Most apt, with this clean, lusciously ripe rosé oozing a precise and deadly charm via its classic Côtes de Provence aromatics of soft summer fruits and violets. The palate is elegantly fresh and tangy, with riveting touches of mineral and citrus.

A TASTE OF South America

MONTES Forging a New World

One of South America's most highly-regarded producers. Wine Spectator refers to Montes as 'the best all-round winery in South America' while The Guardian's Tim Atkin declared them Winemaker of the Year in 2006, and the lofty Decanter described their Alpha Cabernet as 'one of the best for its price anywhere in the world'. Chairman and Head Winemaker Aurelio Montes takes all this in his globe-straddling stride. Together with the late Douglas Murray, Aurelio started the ball rolling in 1987 to showcase to the world Chile's hitherto untapped potential for premium winemaking, and Montes continues to set the benchmark.

The smoky, earthy, robust nature of this finds its mate in char-grilled meat: a cut of Picanha beef, brushed with harissa paste, grilled hot and fast. The wine's spicy notes complement the harissa, the rich fruit aromas harmonize with the rare cut.

A TASTE OF Australia

SALTRAM

An integral part of Australian winemaking history, Saltram was established in 1859 by Exeter import, William Salter. Arriving in Adelaide in 1829, William and family moved to the newly-opened Barossa Valley in 1844 and became one of the first to purchase land in the region. They named the property 'Mamre Brook' after the biblical home of Abraham.

William and his son Edward developed a vineyard and released their first wine in 1862. By 1882 Saltram wines were distributed throughout Australia, New Zealand and Britain, and over the ensuing years many of Australia's most celebrated and influential winemakers have been responsible for Saltram's vinous offerings. 150 years on, Saltram continue to deliver premium Barossa Valley wines of the highest quality under the practised eye of Senior Winemaker Shavaughn Wells.
